Last summer, the Indiana Association of REALTORS® held the first-ever Rural Housing Summit exploring the unique challenges and hurdles to development facing Indiana's small towns and rural communities.

This year, IAR's summer summit is focused on Indiana's metropolitan regions, where three of every four Hoosiers live and eight of every ten home sales happened in 2023.

Homebuyer surveys show a growing preference for walkable neighborhoods, a desire to live closer to work, shopping and dining options, recreational and cultural amenities – and even pay a premium to live in more convenient, connected communities.

These trends are paying off for Indiana's metros, but we can do even better: The Metro Housing Summit gives REALTORS® a deeper dive into the challenges and opportunities of these markets and a blueprint for getting more engaged in building thriving regional communities.

Final agenda and confirmed speakers coming soon!

What to expect at the Metro Housing Summit:

- Lessons in how land use and zoning can promote residential density, in-fill homebuilding and walkable neighborhoods that meet market demands.
- Learn how REALTORS® can get more involved in redevelopment and quality of life strategies that appeal to today's homeowners.
- Tap into state programs for residential development, livability investments and homebuyer assistance.
- Hear how cities, suburbs and small towns across Indiana are working together on regional housing and economic development projects, and what makes metro partnerships succeed.
- Connect with local elected officials, planners and developers, other REALTORS® and real estate professionals serving some of Indiana's most active housing markets.

Who should register for the Metro Housing Summit?

Real estate professionals, homebuilders and developers, local elected officials and planners, members of redevelopment commissions and zoning boards – anyone interested in meeting market demand for walkable neighborhoods and residential density, increasing access to housing in growing communities and pursuing regional redevelopment and quality of life strategies.
